Three Appomattox Churches To Participate In Mission Saturation Event

Three churches in Appomattox County will participate in the Mission Saturation Event sponsored by the Lynchburg District of the United Methodist Church. Seven different mission workers will speak in these churches, May 6-8. This is part of a general program of interpretation of the wide variety of mission programs in which the United Methodist Church is engaged.

At the Bethel Church, located in Stonewall, Miss Donna Murphy will speak to the Sunday School at 10 a.m. on Sunday, May 6. Tuesday evening, May 8, the Rev. Franklin P. Smith will be present at a covered dish supper, which will begin at 6 p.m. at the United Methodist parsonage in Oakville. Rev Smith will speak following the meal. Miss Murphy participated in the Mexico work-seminar project in 1978. Rev. Smith is the Executive Coordinator of Hunger, United Methodist Committee on Relief. He was formerly a missionary in Taiwan as Chaplain and Instructor at Soochow University. His present agency administers disaster relief and rehabilitation program in 55 countries overseas as well as within the U.S.A. Miss Murphy is a graduate of Longwood College.

The Mount Comfort Church, between Gladstone and Oakville will have several missionaries. Mrs. Fern Rutherford will speak to the Sunday School classes at 10 a.m. At the 11 a.m. worship services, May 6, the Rev. Vincent Rutherford will preach. Rev. and Mrs. Rutherford are presently missionaries in Bangladesh. They have also served in West Pakistan and Afghanistan. Their primary work has been concerned with rural communities. Miss Marilou Fallis will speak to the youth group at 7 p.m., May 6. She is a short-term missionary presently working with the United Campus Ministry program at Virginia Commonwealth University. On Monday evening, May 7, at 8 p.m., Miss Jean F. Craig will speak at Mount Comfort. Retired since 1971, Miss Craig has served as a missionary in China and Korea, and visited many Asian countries. She spent 17 days in China in 1977. Miss Craig, a native of Richmond, is a graduate of the Randolph-Macon Woman's College in Lynchburg, Scarritt College, and the Union Theological Seminary, New York City.

Trinity Church, in Stonewall, will also host several missionaries. Rev. Rutherford will preach at the 10 a.m. worship service on May 6. Mrs. Rutherford will speak to several Sunday School Classes at 11:15. Miss Fallis will be present at a Family Night Supper and speak to the youth group at 6 p.m., Sunday, May 6. Monday evening, May 7, Mrs. Elizabeth L. Swarthout will speak to the United Methodist Women of this Church at 7:30. All four women's circles at Trinity will gather for this occasion. Mrs. Swarthout is engaged in church and community work in West Virginia. She is currently a disaster response consultant.

Several members of all three churches will attend the Lynchburg District "kick-off" dinner and rally, May 5. The members and officers of the church invite the public to join them in learning more about the wide range of mission programs of the church around the world. An offering will be taken to defray the travel expenses of the mission interpreters. Anyone interested in missions should enjoy one or more of these opportunities.

Correction On Lawson Ford Winners

The First Place Winner in Street Class of 4-Wheel Drives in the recently sponsored contest by Lawson Ford, Inc. was Ed Wilson of Lynchburg.

Wilson built and owned the '64 Falcon 4-Wheel Drive vehicle that won first place.

In the last edition of the TIMES VIRGINIAN, in the Lawson Ford advertisement of congratulations to winners, we printed the winner as Wayne Mayhew. He only drove the vehicle down to the contest for Wilson.

His World Is Becoming Woman's World, Too

More and more women — many of them mothers — are joining today's work force.

Why this explosion of woman-power? Inflation is cited by economists as one reason for the increasing numbers of homemakers entering the work force, and self-fulfillment is given as yet another reason in this age of women's liberation.

While the media has focused on women in heretofore masculine areas, or women at the top of their profession, the majority of women are employed in far less-exciting or glamorous jobs. Most of them are clerical workers or service workers, as a matter of fact. A relatively small proportion of women function as either engineers or lawyers, for instance.

But, somewhere between the glamorous executive and the hard-hatted woman, lies a tremendous diversity of occupations held by women.

Women are teachers, technicians, typists, nurses, accountants, secretaries, domestics, writers, dietitians, computer specialists, and sales clerks.

They work as therapists, librarians, cashiers, artists, judges, dentists, managers, bookkeepers, editors, and farm workers, among many other occupations.

The changing face of America's work force is having its effect in many ways. Husbands are now faced with wives either wanting to work or having to work, and mothers are juggling their roles at home and on the job.

Psychologists find that often husbands are confused about disruptions in the family routine, due to their wives going to work. Men may resist doing household chores, feeling it is unmanly, even though obviously the working wife cannot continue to do all the housework by herself. A husband may even view his wife's entry into the work world as an invasion of his "territory," note psychologists.

Similarly, youngsters may resent the fact that Mom is not available at all times or that some household chores may have to be assumed by older children.

The working mother herself may be resentful of having to hold down two jobs: taking care of the home and working from 9 to 5.

Experts point out that working wives will have to change their attitudes toward their home responsibilities, avoiding the "Superwoman" trap, and becoming realistic as to what can or cannot be done. And, husbands may have to change their preconceived notions as to what is "feminine" work as well.

Even single women are changing their attitudes toward working. More of them are training for professional careers as they see the growing number of women "at the top." Women corporate officers, for example, increased by over one-fourth in numbers during the last year.

Whether married or single, the working woman of today is having a tremendous impact on the American way of life. She's getting attention from the airline and hotel industries as the number of business women who travel increases. And, she's bringing down barriers in more and more male-dominated work areas.

New Furniture Trends Come to Newlyweds' Aid

After the perfect wedding and honeymoon, the happy young couple will begin their life together in earnest, and chances are, it'll be in an apartment or a small home.

How to make a limited area (and budget!) reflect the young couple's good taste, is a dilemma that can be solved with ingenuity and awareness of the latest furniture looks available.

To keep small areas from looking crowded, furniture pieces should be chosen wisely, with an eye to versatility. That cocktail table, for instance, can also function as a low buffet table or a storage island. Or, a drop-leaf cart table can be wheeled in from its place in the kitchen to become a dining table in the living room.

Modular furniture lends itself beautifully to that first apartment, allowing the greatest versatility in arrangement. Modular cushions shape themselves easily to any living room, regardless of its dimension. An added bonus is the fact that such furniture transplants from that first apartment to the couple's first home with just a little rearranging.

Don't limit a room's usefulness with "labels," advise decorators. A small dining area off the living room, for instance, can also serve as a study on an everyday basis, provided you have eating accommodations in your kitchen. Simply place a table at right angles to the wall (where you can also place your bookshelves) add a chair, and you have a handy work area within easy reach of reference books. When company comes, place the table parallel to the wall, add extra chairs and you have a comfortable dining arrangement.

If you're investing in a new sofa, consider a sleeper sofa. It'll enable your living room to double as a guest room when relatives or friends visit.

Wall storage systems offer the greatest versatility of all, serving as bookcases, stereo cabinets, china cupboards, art galleries . . . whatever. Ready-made bookcases can also provide multipurpose storage when stacked along walls. These also have the advantage of mobility; they can partition off areas of a room if needed.

Knock-down furniture, so called because it comes apart for easy transporting, is a natural for young couples. These easy-to-assemble units range from shelves to chairs, are the answer to today's need for low-priced, contemporary furniture that goes with you.

Congratulations

SHOWER THE BRIDE WITH GOOD WISHES

The bridal shower—an old-fashioned tradition that's still popular with the modern bride. It's a time when friends and family can "shower" the bride with gifts for her new home and good wishes for the future. An at-home shower is fun for all, including the hostess when she serves dishes that are made ahead with no last minute fussing. "Golden Ring" Salad is perfect for a bridal shower—easy to make and serve, and pretty enough to be the centerpiece.

"GOLDEN RING" SALAD

1 can (16 oz.) pineapple chunks, drained (reserve syrup)
1 can (11 oz.) mandarin oranges, drained (reserve syrup)
2 envelopes Knox® Unflavored Gelatine
1 cup boiling water
1/4 cup lime juice

In 5-cup blender, sprinkle unflavored gelatine over reserved syrups; let stand 3 to 4 minutes. Add boiling water and process at low speed until gelatine is completely dissolved, about 2 minutes. Add pineapple, oranges, and lime juice; process at high speed until fruit is pureed, about 2 minutes. Pour into 4-cup ring mold and chill until firm. To serve, unmold onto serving platter; mound your favorite chicken or seafood salad in center. Makes about 8 servings.

Demand for Appliances Great Among Newlyweds

Influenced by upbringing and lack of free time, today's young marrieds have more electrical devices and novelties than ever before.

Records of a Louisville (Ky.) manufacturer indicate that newlyweds generally purchase ranges and refrigerators as first appliances, followed by washers and dryers, and air conditioners when not provided through rental housing.

Recent purchase habits emphasize a predominant demand for miniature and convenience-type appliances, prompted by an increase in the number of working wives.

Present appliances reflect a trend towards quality and service. Price, though important, is considered second to reliability and durability.

Couples expect to use appliances for many years and show sincere interest in the products, and in the performance of the appliances they select.

Beauty for the Bride

While you're planning your trousseau, your wedding and honeymoon trip, don't forget to plan for looking your loveliest throughout each day of your honeymoon. A little forethought can insure that you'll stay radiant after your wedding day with a minimum of time and trouble.

Make sure your hair is in ideal shape by having it professionally cut, styled and permed or touched-up a week before the wedding. Indulge yourself with a manicure and pedicure as well — this will pay beauty dividends if you take along a bottle of the same polish on your trip for touch-ups.

Be sure and take your beauty paraphernalia separately, where you can find what you need quickly and where leaking bottles or jars will do minimum damage.

Your beauty kit should include manicure implements plus nail polish remover and polish; your favorite skin-care and foundation products; a mini-dryer and curling iron; an eye-kit of mascara, shadow, remover, etc; a wardrobe of fragrances; a good supply of shampoo and conditioner; lipstick shades to complement your honeymoon wardrobe (or color gloss for lips and eyes to save space); depilatory; and sun tan needs.

Taking time beforehand to plan your beauty regimen will mean you can look your loveliest during your honeymoon.
